

Reimagining the Griffith Park Pony Rides Site Pop-up Events: Summary of Key Takeaways

Introduction

From December 2023 through April 2024, RAP staff talked to the community at spontaneous in-person pop-up booths at parks facilities across the city to gain firsthand, on-the-spot ideas and input from park visitors regarding the future of the Griffith Park Pony Rides site and the current process to re-imagine it. During that time, RAP staff spoke with approximately 400 parkgoers to share information about the effort and to ask the following questions:

- Did you hear about the Griffith Park Pony Ride closing?
- If you could make a change, what do you believe the closed Pony Ride Site should be used for in the future?
- Who do you think the area should be used by?
- Do you feel that the new activity should have a live animal experience or non-animal experience?
- What other things would you like to share with us about the future of the Pony Ride Site?

The pop-up booths also included an informal activity in which visitors were invited to write down on large posters indicating which zip code they live in and any thoughts they had about how they would like to re- envision the future of the Pony Ride Site. A children’s activity was also made available where younger visitors could draw what they would like to see at the site. The results of these activities are included as an attachment at the end of this summary.

Where We Connected with the Community

Key Takeaways from Pop-Up Events

Below is a summary of general comments and ideas participants shared during these pop-up events. This summary is intended to serve as a high-level overview of ideas shared by those that stopped by the booths, and should be used as one source for context in addition to the collective feedback received from other outreach efforts coordinated by the RAP Department on this project. The overview below is not representative of direct transcriptions of conversations with visitors stopping by the booth, nor does it represent a formal recommendation or opinions held by RAP or PlaceWorks. It is also intended to get a sense of the general sentiment of those interacted with and is not intended to serve as a statistically valid survey of ideas.

“What do you envision for the future of the Pony Ride Site?” Poster Board Activity

Participants were invited to provide their answers and zip codes on large poster boards and staff took notes with other visitors to record their ideas. Visitors answered in both English and Spanish. The general preference of visitors who participated in this activity leaned toward the inclusion of an animal experience alongside other uses including educational spaces, water activities, playgrounds, and a community garden.

General Summary of Insights from Conversations with Park Visitors

Participants held a wide range of opinions and shared many different ideas about the future of the Pony Ride Site and how it should be used in the future such as:

- Participants generally indicated support for family-friendly recreational uses with educational and entertainment components.
- Approximately 79% of those interacted with (218) indicated support for a live animal experience of some sort (approximately 34% wanted to see the pony rides come back).
- 8% of participants indicated support for a live animal experience and added that their support is conditional on the humane treatment of animals and a high standard of care (21 mentions).
- Approximately 12% of those interacted with (48) indicated support for a non-animal experience.
- Approximately 10% of those asked (37) gave an unclear or undecided response regarding an animal/non-animal experience.
- Participants were generally open to the idea of including a combination of uses on the site (versus selection of a singular use only), including suggestions such as: creating multiple animal-oriented experiences, pairing an animal experience with a non-animal experience, or grouping multiple non-animal uses.
- General sentiment among participants indicated preference for a use that kept the area relatively undeveloped and highlighted the “natural” qualities of the site.
- Participants generally liked the affordability of the previous Pony Rides use.
- Participants indicated that any potential animal use should consider and prioritize animal well-being.

Note: The total numbers don’t add to 388 respondents, since some people expressed interest in bringing back pony rides or said “no to pony rides” and offered suggestions for other activities. Very few people stated solely “No to Pony Rides. Instead, many people provided a range of ideas that included the reuse of the site with animal-related and non-animal related uses such as petting zoo, bike, housing, racquetball etc.
